Division of Investigation
U. S. Department of Justice

John Edgar Hoover, Director

Washington, D. C.

VOL. 3 No. 1

JANUARY 1, 1934

The Division of Investigation, U. S. Department of Justice, is charged with the duty of investigating violations of the laws of the United States and collecting evidence in cases in which the United States is or may be a party in interest.

The Division does not have investigative jurisdiction over violations of Counterfeiting, Narcotic, Customs, Immigration, or Postal Laws.

However, the Division of Investigation will immediately institute investigations of alleged violations of Federal Laws other than those listed above.

The following list indicates some of the major violations over which the Division has investigative jurisdiction:-

National Motor Vehicle Theft Act

National Bankruptcy Act

White Slave Traffic Act

Impersonation of Government Officials

Larceny of Goods in Interstate Commerce

Cases involving transportation in interstate or foreign commerce of any persons who have been kidnapped

Theft, Embezzlement or Illegal Possession of Government Property

Antitrust Laws

National Bank and Federal Reserve Act Violations, such as embezzlement, abstraction or misapplication of funds

Crimes on any kind of Government reservation, including Indian Reservations or in any Government building or other Government property

Neutrality violations, including the shipment of arms to friendly nations

Frauds against the Government

Perjury, embezzlement, or bribery in connection with Federal Statutes or officials

Crimes on the high seas

The location of persons who are fugitives from justice by reason of violations of the Federal Laws over which the Division has jurisdiction, of escaped Federal prisoners, and parole and probation violators.

It will be appreciated if information in the possession of law-enforcement officials concerning the above listed violations is promptly forwarded to the Special Agent in Charge of the nearest field office of the Division of Investigation, U. S. Department of Justice. If the information indicates that immediate action is necessary, telegrams marked "Government Rate Collect" or telephone calls will be accepted. The address of each of the Field Offices of this Division appears on the inside back cover of this bulletin.

Vol. 3 No. 1

January 1, 1934

The New Year of 1934 ushers in an era which I trust will go down in history as one marked by an increased vigor and achievement in the field of criminal investigation and the suppression of crime. I believe that it will, in view of the fact that the general public is crime conscious as never before.

I wish to take this opportunity of acknowledging the many expressions of appreciation and praise received from my associates and law enforcement officials throughout this and other countries and to assure each of you that I am deeply grateful. To the many police and law enforcement organizations and associations which have passed commendatory resolutions relative to the work of the Division of Investigation, I offer my gratitude and thanks. To all of you I wish a happy and prosperous year.

The Division of Investigation has experienced a busy and successful year. You have no doubt noticed the expansion of the "Fugitives Wanted by Police" bulletin in which this is published. The Identification Unit has gone well over the four million mark in its total of fingerprint record cards. During the past year it added a Single Fingerprint File which at present contains the prints of over three thousand individuals and which is growing rapidly. Its international exchange of fingerprints has also grown rapidly during the past year. The crime statistics work of the Division has received gratifying support from law enforcement officials and its additional data compiled from fingerprint cards has received universal commendation. The new Federal Kidnaping and Extortion Acts have increased the Division's work to a great extent and I am glad to report that all kidnaping cases and the majority of extortion cases handled by the Division during the past year were solved. The solution of these cases was effected as a result of the close cooperation and invaluable assistance of local law enforcement officials. In several instances, the guilty parties were tried in State Courts, with the Division lending every possible aid to the State authorities. The concentrated attack necessary in any successful battle upon crime is admirably illustrated by these cases. The Division of Investigation in September, 1933, as the result of Presidential Proclamation of June 10, 1933, based on the Economy Act of March 20, 1933 took over the investigation incident to all litigation concerning War Risk Insurance policies, formerly performed by the Veterans Administration.

It is my firm belief that organizations as well as individuals must either progress or retrogress - there is no stationary point. The Division of Investigation will move forward as in the past and I feel sure that you law enforcement officers will do the same. Your continued cooperation will make the Division's achievement of its purpose easier and your continued support will act as an added incentive. I earnestly ask for both.

John Edgar Hoover

The following article entitled "Sympathetic Inks" is being published for the information of law enforcement officials and agencies, with the permission of the United States Bureau of Standards:

SYMPATHETIC INKS

By United States Bureau of Standards.

Persons who indulge in secret writing for legitimate or nefarious reasons must have invisible or sympathetic ink. In their chapter on this subject, Mitchell and Hepworth* say that both Ovid (43 B.C. to A.D. 17) and Pliny (no doubt the Elder, A.D. 23 to 79) tell about sympathetic inks. They knew of the use of milk and plant juices for this purpose. When heated moderately, the writing turns brown before the paper or parchment begins to scorch; and thus the message becomes readable. These are but two examples of secret inks that are made visible by heating. Some of the materials that are used char more easily than paper, but others act upon the paper in such a way that the writing turns brown, or even jet-black.

Without going outside of the home, one can get several materials for making sympathetic ink that is developed by heat. Any of the following substances can be used, though it must be confessed that some of them are very poor indeed: Alum, soda (either baking or washing), borax, flour boiled with plenty of water, corn sirup thinned with water, soap solution, diluted mucilage, milk, lemon juice, saliva, or storage battery acid diluted with 10 or 12 volumes of water.

The salts of several metals have long been favorite materials for sympathetic ink. These salts are not all colorless in the solid form or in strong solution, but solutions so dilute as to make invisible marks on paper can be developed by suitable means. Among these salts are lead acetate, ferric sulphate, mercuric chloride (corrosive sublimate, dangerous to handle and very poisonous), copper sulphate, cobalt chloride, and nickel chloride. In addition to being turned brown or black by the vapors of ammonium sulphide, writing with any of these salts can be developed by heat, and still other means can be employed with some of them. For instance, if a ferric salt is used, tannic acid solution will turn the writing black, or potassium ferrocyanide will form Prussian blue.

Of the salts just mentioned, cobalt chloride is in some respects the most interesting. When a water solution of the salt evaporates to dryness, the chloride appears in crystals which are red, though not intensely so. If the solution used as sympathetic ink is very dilute, the thin layer of crystals left in the paper when the writing dries will not be perceptible. If the writing is kept for some time in quite dry air, or is warmed moderately, the cobalt chloride loses most of its "water of crystallization" and then is so intensely blue that the writing is visible. Exposure to moist air, as by breathing upon it, makes the writing vanish, because the blue salt regains its water of crystallization and turns red. These changes back and forth can be repeated many times, but if once the secret writing should be heated a little too strongly the paper will char and the writing will be permanently black.

As a means of developing secret writing with a variety of substances, iodine is interesting. It is preferably used as the vapor from the solid element, though the tincture diluted with water can be employed. If a thin solution of starch was used for the writing, iodine will turn it blue. The color disappears after a time and more quickly by gentle warming. Writing with a solution of soap becomes yellow or brown because the fatty acids in the soap absorb iodine vapor more readily than the paper does. This color soon disappears, for iodine is so volatile. Copper sulphate and lead acetate are also colored temporarily, while marks made with mercuric chloride show as white on a background of yellow paper. Finally if the writing was done with distilled water, iodine vapor will color the letters a little more strongly than the background. The water disturbs the sizing at the surface of the paper and thus allows the iodine vapor to be absorbed more readily there than elsewhere.

In the examination of a document suspected of containing secret writing, the first step would naturally be to heat the paper moderately. This may bring out nothing, but it is not apt to destroy the latent evidence. Exposure to iodine vapor or to the fumes of ammonium sulphide might be next in order, though the fumes from ammonia water could be used. If heat and the various vapors fail, chemical solutions must be tried on selected small parts of the document. To treat the whole sheet of paper with a reagent that brought no visible result might destroy all chance of developing the writing.

INTERESTING IDENTIFICATION

FUGITIVE WANTED FOR MURDER IDENTIFIED AS MURDERED

According to advice received in the Identification Unit of the Division of Investigation, a murder was committed in Roanoke, Virginia on August 21, 1924. An individual known as Percy or Andrew Hansbrough was reported to be wanted for this crime and a copy of the wanted circular containing fingerprints issued in this case, was referred to the Division for the purpose of determining Hansbrough's whereabouts at a later date.

On December 7, 1933, the Division received from the Police Department at Columbia, Missouri, the fingerprints of a deceased person who, apparently, had been murdered in an abandoned house in the southern part of Boone County, Missouri. The officials indicated they were at a loss to know the motive of the murder or the identity of the individual. The fingerprints forwarded were taken about five or six days after the murder according to the doctor's estimate of the day of his death. After the fingerprints of the deceased had been classified and searched in the identification records, it was found that he was the same as Hansbrough wanted by the Roanoke officials. The interested authorities were informed immediately of this rather unusual identification.

Through the Division's activities in this matter it was not only possible to determine the location of the fugitive wanted in Roanoke and thereby enable the officials at that point to terminate their case against him, but to acquaint the Missouri authorities with information as to the identity of the deceased person whose body was being held there.

PRISONER WHO MURDERED GUARD WHILE ESCAPING LOCATED THROUGH FINGERPRINT IDENTIFICATION

According to advice received in the Identification Unit of the Division of Investigation, the apprehension of Alexander J. Kaminsky was urgently desired by the Sheriff of Hampden County, at Springfield, Massachusetts, as well as the Supervisor of the Bureau of Identification, State House, Boston, Massachusetts, in connection with Kaminsky's escape from the Hampden County House of Correction on October 22, 1933, after murdering a guard.

Information appearing in the files of the Identification Unit reflected that Kaminsky had been received in the institution named on September 25, 1933, to serve a term of 6 months for carrying a revolver in an auto. His criminal record, however, appears to have started in 1919, when he was placed on probation at New Britain, Connecticut for theft. In 1921 he was committed to the School for Boys by the New Britain authorities for theft, and in 1925 and 1927 it is reported that he was again returned to the School for Boys. In 1928 he was sentenced to serve a term of one year in the State Farm at Raiford, Florida for breaking and entering, and in 1929 he was received in the State Prison at Wethersfield, Connecticut to serve four to seven years for statutory burglary.

Upon receipt of the advice concerning the murder committed by Kaminsky, the usual wanted notice was placed in the identification files. On November 22, 1933, one Robert Laroy alias Bob Laroy was arrested by the Police at Lynchburg, Virginia, charged with burglary. Laroy's fingerprints were taken and forwarded to the Division of Investigation immediately, where a search of the identification files proved conclusively that Laroy was identical with Kaminsky, the fugitive wanted for murder by the Massachusetts authorities. Advice concerning this identification was telegraphed at once to the Massachusetts and Virginia officials, and according to the latest information received in the Identification Unit, arrangements have been effected to secure the return of Kaminsky to Massachusetts for trial.

The identification of the fugitive in this case is but one of the approximately 350 effected each month in the Division's Identification Unit. All law enforcement officials are, of course, invited to utilize this service liberally and to refer to the Division of Investigation the names of persons wanted by them for all types of offenses.
